Tuesday's scheduled ORE cancelled until further notice

By Staff Sgt. Russell Wicke
355th Wing Public Affairs

Real-world operations led to Thursday morning's decision to postpone the first operational readiness exercise of 2003, which was scheduled to start Tuesday.

Exercises like the ORE are executed to ensure the 355th Wing and other participating units are prepared to support wartime operations of deploying combat aircraft and to make certain D-M is ready for an operational readiness inspection, said Master Sgt. David Jefferson, 355th Wing Inspections and Plans NCO in charge of initial response.

"Everyone residing on D-M, to include dependants, is affected by exercises like these," said Jefferson. "After September 11, it has become everyone's responsibility to take anti-terrorist measures for base security."

According to 1st Lt. Stephen Hendren, 355th Logistics Readiness Squadron Readiness Flight chief, OREs are a simulation of what has happened or what could happen to many of us at anytime. It's not just about deploying. That is why it is especially important for the Air Force's newer members to get a piece of this pie.

nating with the Outstanding Performer of the Year banquet March 7. For more information about the banquet, call Staff Sgt. Rachel Clark at 228-3559. For related feature of the annual award winners, turn to Page 4.

Roche, Jumper offer condolences as nation mourns loss

By Dr. James Roche
Secretary of the Air Force, and
Gen. John Jumper
Air Force Chief of Staff

Saturday, Feb. 1, our nation and the world lost seven courageous, talented individuals when the Space Shuttle Columbia Orbiter (STS-107) experienced catastrophic failure 15 minutes prior to landing at Kennedy Space Center, Fla. Among these brave astronauts were two officers from the Air Force family: Col. Rick Husband, mission commander, from Amarillo, Texas; and Lt. Col. Michael Anderson, payload commander, from Spokane, Wash.

On behalf of the men and women of the U.S. Air Force, we offer our deepest condolences to our Air Force family members Evelyn Husband and her children Laura and Matthew, and Sandra Anderson and her children Sydney and Kaycee. We stand together with all Americans in offering our prayers for the families, friends and co-workers of those lost in this tragic accident. We will never forget their great contributions to our nation and the world.

While we are deeply saddened by this tragic loss, we are also very proud of the Air Force team that has tirelessly assisted in the response to this national tragedy.

Air Force Space Command units from Peterson, Buckley and Patrick Air Force Bases provided tracking data as part of the accident investigation. Tanker units from Birmingham, Ala., and fighter squadrons from Texas and Louisiana supported a number of search and recovery actions. We've also flown communications support out of Texas and Oklahoma and provided airlift support from McGuire Air Force Base, N.J. Barksdale Air Force Base, La., provided part of the Initial Response Teams supporting the Texas Department of Public Safety in recovery efforts, and continues to function as the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Consequence Management Operations Center and NASA Shuttle Recovery Center. The Air Force family will continue to offer support to the astronaut's families, Department of Defense, NASA, Federal Energy Management Agency, and state organizations.

We grieve for our friends and co-workers, but we also join the rest of the world in celebrating seven lives well lived and promise to continue to support the space program's noble mission of discovery.

May God bless the grieving families, our men and women in uniform and the United States of America.

Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a goal for all D-M people.

Ideas, suggestions, comments, concerns and kudos are important to make improvements.

The best way to pass along a comment or to get an answer to a concern is to contact the agency chief or functional managers listed here. Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is 228-4747. An e-mail can also be sent to: 355th.Wing.CommandersCorner@dm.af.mil.

Callers must leave their name, phone number and a message.

They will receive a prompt reply in writing or by telephone. We will honor caller confidentiality, but sometimes we need to contact callers to gather additional information. If a concern is of general interest to the base populace, the response may be published in the Desert Airman. Anonymous calls may not be published.

Air Force changes race data policy

Airmen are now able to claim more than one race in their official personnel files because of a change in how the Air Force records racial information.

Some airmen's race designations will automatically be changed to fit the new categories as part of the data conversion.

The new choices are part of a government-wide effort to standardize race data. These choices are available now, said 2nd Lt. Crystal Schuh, 355th Mission Support Squadron chief of customer service.

"Everyone should take a minute to ensure their race preference is correct," said Col. Gary Smith, chief of the field activities division at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas.

In the past, airmen could select only one race preference, said Senior Master Sgt. Richard Knudson, superintendent of the military equal opportunity branch at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas. Now, they will be able to select any number of five newly designated race groups.

The revamped choices are American Indian or Alaska Native; Asian; Black or African American; Native Hawaiian or other Pacific Islander; and White.

The easiest way for members to view and update their racial designation is on the Virtual Military Personnel Flight by clicking the "vMPF" button at www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/. Race choices and descriptions of the new categories are located on the "personal information" page under the "records review" link, he said.

"Most people's current race selections will smoothly transfer into the new categories," said Knudson.

But some categories will automatically be re-designated. "Asian/Pacific Islander" will be converted to the "Asian" category, plus the former "other" and "unknown" options will be switched to the new "declined to respond" category. The federal guidelines also call for a new "Hispanic and Latino" ethnic category, he said. Now all airmen will be asked whether or not they are of Hispanic or Latino descent.

More information is available by calling the Air Force Contact Center toll-free at 1-866-229-7074 or DSN 665-5000 or by visiting your local personnel flight.

D-M Health and Wellness Center named best in ACC

Story and photo by Senior Airman Troy Hawkes
355th Wing Public Affairs

The Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Health and Wellness Center was recently selected as the best in Air Combat Command and is competing at the Air Force level.

The HAWC staff played a key role in receiving this award, according to Maj. Nancy Klein, 355th Aerospace Medicine Squadron Health Promotions Flight commander.

"We have a wonderful staff. They are all very dedicated," said Tech. Sgt. Ricardo Legaspi, 355th AMDS therapy craftsman.

The HAWC staff is comprised of six primary personnel and totals 14 members, including volunteers.

One member of the staff is the Red Cross volunteer of the year for the 355th Medical Group, said Legaspi. "We also sponsor interns from the University of Arizona health education classes for one semester," said Klein.

For the interns, as well as the HAWC, the program is mutually beneficial, according to Klein. "We give them knowledge on what it's like to work in the realwork environment," said Klein. "They like our program because it's very comprehensive."

Senior Airman Carol Mitchell, 355th Medical Operations Squadron, relaxes and controls her breathing while taking her cycle ergometry test. This is one of the many services provided by the 355th Health and Wellness Center which was recently named best in Air Combat Command.

The HAWC receives the benefit of force multiplication which helps when there's limited staffing.

Another key factor to the HAWC's success is its dedication to the customers. "We try to accommodate everybody," said Legaspi. This is also indicated by its mission statement: "Recognizing that people are our most vital resource, D-M is committed to a health and wellness partnership with individuals and families through integrated programs which promote self improvement and healthy living."

Klein cites the HAWC's variety of programs offered as yet another reason for its success. "We've done a lot of really innovative programs this year. Now other bases are coming to us and using us as the resource for their HAWCs," said Klein.

Some of the programs offered by the HAWC are nutrition classes, microfit evaluations, tobacco cessation, cycle ergometry fitness evaluations, a relaxation room and an information and resource room.

"The staff worked very hard and receiving this award is a great reward for their efforts. It buoys their spirit and helps them continue what they're doing. It always helps morale when someone realizes you're working hard," said Klein.

ORE

There are many airmen at D-M who have yet to experience an ORE. This presents a significant challenge to the more experienced members.

"Because of huge turnovers, training people to the proper skill level is essential to D-M's readiness," said Jefferson.

"The biggest obstacle we will face in the readiness flight is the appointment of new deployment-machine augmentees," he said. "For many, the next ORE will be their first time to go through the process of prepping cargo and passengers for military or charter airlift." However, the readiness flight will not walk into this challenge unprepared.

"The airlift operations and logistics plans elements are currently holding classes to train these new individuals," said Hendren. Although training is only one of the contributing elements to D-M's overall success, time invested into OREs prove to be fruitful.

D-M sees benefits from their work in OREs in the preceding OREs, said Jefferson.

"Our deployment teams will begin to gel by the end of the first exercise and you'll see the benefits of OREs," said Hendren. And working as a team is just as important as the job itself.

Hendren reminds the community that the 355th Wing trains on a daily basis to support contingency operations. "What we don't train for everyday is getting our forces to the fight. Phase One of OREs gives us that opportunity," he said. "At the same time it gives wing leadership a first-hand opportunity to see our level of preparedness."

The reason this ORE is postponed is because of real-world events and deployments. According to Jefferson, the better training we do during OREs, the better prepared we are for real-world events

D-M engineer receives Air Force CE award

Honor recognizes deputy's accomplishments

By Stephanie Ritter
355th Wing Public Affairs

The deputy base civil engineer will take his place among a group of distinguished leaders when he steps up to accept an Air Force-level civil engineer award in Washington D.C. Tuesday and Wednesday.

Michael Toriello, 355th CES, will travel to Washington to receive the 2002 Air Force Harry P. Rietman

Award in the category of senior civilian manager.

"This particular award is chosen only by the Air Force civil engineer community," said Lt. Col. Karl Bosworth, 355th CES commander. "What is significant here, is that Mike first competed for and won among the Air Combat Command installations and then competed as the ACC nomination at the Air Force level."

"Mike is one of the finest civilians with whom I have worked in 20 years,"

"His demeanor and professionalism are spectacular and his knowledge of the base is phenomenal," added Bosworth.

Starting his career as a member of the enlisted corps, Toriello has worked for the Air Force for more than 30 years.

As a member of the D-M community for the past 15 years, Toriello has been responsible for significant improvements to the 355th Wing including developing a prototype for an extensive in-house roofing program. The program, which repairs and replaces base roofs, has already saved the Air Force $1.3 million on only 10 facilities.

"I truly appreciate just being nominated," said Toriello. "There are a lot of very good people out there, but I have great support from senior leadership."

"It means a lot when the leadership you work for takes the time to put the packages together," Toriello added.

"Thankfully, I have also had the support of my wife, Jane, and three sons throughout my career."

According to Toriello, another key to his success is the fact that the base civil engineers treat him not as a deputy, but as an equal. "It's pretty easy to succeed when surrounded by a team of professionals like those in the 355th CES from engineers to techs in the field," said Toriello.

"I am also fortunate because I truly enjoy what I do. I have the unique opportunity to do different and challenging work on a daily basis," Toriello said.

The 355th CES has a long list of responsibilities including accommodating new units and missions; the design and construction of new structures; the maintenance and demolition of existing buildings; fire protection and maintenance of housing area, roads and utilities to name a few.

As deputy, Toriello makes sure all such on-base projects run smoothly.

But Toriello's responsibilities extend beyond the borders of D-M. Toriello is also responsible for certain off base issues including assisting with local planning of land use to prevent encroachment on the base. According to Bosworth, Toriello has developed lasting partnerships with local and state officials. This involvement helps Davis-Monthan Air Force Base to complete its mission.

"All leaders at the base, local and state levels seek out Mike's counsel on the really tough issues; and most importantly, they listen to him," Bosworth said.

"There isn't enough space in a weekly paper to describe all the things that Mike does for this wing and base. Other than recognition for Mike's 15 years of dedicated service, we are extremely proud of his accomplishments," Bosworth added.

Common Sense Parenting®

New Book Brings Help and Confidence to Parents of Toddlers

HELP • HEALING • HOPE

Confidence. Less conflict. Enjoyment.

That's what author Bridget Barnes believes parents who use the techniques and skills explained in the new book, Common Sense Parenting of Toddlers and Preschoolers, can gain. Those skills have been taught to parents of 2 to 5 year-olds in workshops offered by Girls and Boys Town since 1996 and are now available to any parent through the book just published by Boys Town Press.

When a parent realizes that "I can correct my child, he or she may get upset with me, but the child is still going to love me," the parent gains confidence, according to Barnes. The book shows parents how to stay calm, communicate clearly, set boundaries, have reasonable expectations, give consistent consequences, and teach a young child self-control and other skills.

Parenting toddlers can be a time of high conflict. Many couples are just finding out that they have very different parenting styles — one may see the other as either too lenient or too strict, says Barnes. It may not be an exaggeration, she adds, to say that agreeing to use Common Sense Parenting® techniques "saves marriages. It can lead to a lot less strife."

Parents, according to Barnes, list many of the same problems with their toddlers — acting up at bedtime and meals, throwing temper tantrums, refusing to take "no" for an answer, etc. In dealing with these issues, however, parents also make common mistakes — treating children like "little adults," giving kids choices they're not equipped to make, and setting expectations too high.

Young children, she says, need lots of reminders, assistance, modeling, and patience. The book provides step-by-step information on how to do these things. Also included are answers to dozens of questions frequently asked by parents of toddlers.

Barnes is the mother of two and stepmother of four children and has been a Common Sense Parenting trainer for 13 years.

Mentoring - - another military buzzword ... or something more?

By Senior Master Sgt. Richard Gelin
355th Medical Support Squadron

Where would you be today without the mentoring you've received throughout your life? Now, wait just a minute ... mentoring? Isn't that just some military term? Far too often, we associate it with a military buzzword crafted by someone with too much time on his or her hands. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Mentoring has made positive impacts on people's lives, not only in the military, but in the civilian realm as well.

To better come to this realization, let's explore the literal meaning of the word and look at some mentors from the civilian community. Armed with this knowledge, you'll be convinced that mentorship knows no bounds, and is clearly a part of life everywhere.

OK, so who came up with this word and what does it mean?

◆ Mentor - 1. In Greek mythology, friend of Odysseus and tutor of Telemachus. On several occasions in the Odyssey, Athena assumes Mentor's form to give advice to Telemachus or Odysseus. His name is proverbial for a faithful and wise adviser.

◆ Mentor - 2. A wise and trusted teacher or counselor.

And you thought a mentor was just someone's supervisor? Some key words in these definitions; friend, tutor, advice, faithful, wise, teacher and counselor. I'd

Final Answer

What romantic way did you propose or were you proposed to?

Airman 1st Class
Daniel Forero
612th Combat
Operations Squadron

"I took her out to dinner for her birthday. I was about to get down on one knee and ask for her hand, when all of the sudden, she was the one who got down and proposed to me. I was speechless."

Staff Sgt. Zan Heilman
355th Medical
Operations Squadron

"My romantic husband of 10 years proposed to me at the bowling alley on base. I had just taken a huge bite of my burger and he popped the big question. After I almost choked, I said 'yes' of course."

Senior Airman
Alvin Wright
355th Dental Squadron

"I got up in front of my church, called my girlfriend at the time, Tara, to the podium with me and looked deeply into her eyes. I then told her what she meant to me and asked her to marry me. She accepted and the rest is history."

Senior Airman
Brooke Stroud
55th Rescue Squadron

"I was in the shower. My husband asked me to stick my arm out. I felt him drop something on my finger, so I pulled my hand back to see the ring. When I opened the curtain, he was on bended knee."

Staff Sgt.
Cathy Register
755th Operation
Support Squadron

"He asked if I wanted to play cards. The deck was all aces of hearts, and he had cut out a heart-shaped hole through about 38 of the cards and put an engagement band inside the heart shaped box."

Airman 1st Class
Desirae Foy
25th Operational
Weather Squadron

"The day after my husband's divorce, to end his previous marriage, was final, he called me up and said, 'Let's go to Vegas and get married!' We've been married happily now for six months."

Mentoring

like for you to look at each word individually. What name first comes to mind after reading each word? Chances are, the names you come up with were all mentors. Each one played a pivotal part of your upbringing and personal or professional growth. You're not alone. From the whomentoredyou.org Web site, I found some well-known folks with some interesting mentors. They were: Tom Brokaw, news anchor - "school teacher and parent"; James Earl Jones, actor - "grandfather and high school teacher"; Colin Powell,

Secretary of State - "father"; John McCain, state senator - "high school teacher"; Gloria Estefan, singer/songwriter - "grandmother"; and Mike Wallace, co-editor, "60 Minutes" - "grammar school teacher."

Of course, in the military we may not be the actual parents, grandparents or school-teachers of those that work for or with us. But, when you look at the role these people filled, you'll see that you have a whole lot in common with them. You teach tasks to your subordinates, you offer advice to co-workers, you counsel, you are a sounding board for those who come to you with problems. You are a mentor.

Although its literal meaning is limited to just a few words, mentoring comes in many forms and is alive and well in both the military and civilian worlds. None of us got to where we are today without it.

The prominent people mentioned earlier didn't reach the status they currently hold without it. No matter how you may interpret its meaning, I think that a key component to mentoring is to always "be there" for your people.

Colin Powell once said that, "The day soldiers stop bringing you their problems is the day you have stopped leading them. They have either lost confidence that you can help them, or concluded that you do not care."

Military buzzword? No. Is it a critical component of personal and professional development in the military? Yes.

Valentine's greetings

Valentine's Day is much more than bouquets of flowers, pounds of chocolate, over-priced teddy bears and Hallmark cards. It is a time to share your love and tenderness with those you care about in a sincere and ever lasting way. It is a time to give your family a call and tell them just how much they mean to you. So many people get caught up in the "materialistic" point of Valentine's Day, when all along- it is a simple day to spread your love across to others what is steady in you heart.

Volunteers needed

To volunteer on- or off-base, please come to the family support center and register with Jackie Abell. Please call Jackie Abell, FSC volunteer coordinator at 228-7373 if you have any questions. Thanks for all of your volunteer efforts.

Kudos to D-M volunteer

Thanks to the good samaritan volunteers. About 10 individuals called, including a representative from an entire unit, who wanted to help Ms. Couch buy her groceries. Because of the huge response I received, I called Ms. Couch, and told her about the big response I was getting. She was thrilled and I could just feel the big smile she had on her face. It made her day that so many people wanted to help out. She is very happy with the volunteer who is helping her now. Thanks to everyone. Jackie Abell, family support center volunteer coordinator.

Thanks to the Fort Lowell Shootout Volunteers. The D-M volunteers were great! We even had "affiliates" show up - one guy, Tim, whose significant other is an air(wo)man, came and worked all day both Saturday and Sunday when it turned out that she might have to go into work during her three scheduled volunteer hours. She was able to work Sunday. So everyone associated in any way with D-M was wonderful.

This is the first Shootout I've worked (which would be, well, all of them) where every booth was manned! Thanks,

A CARONDELET HEALTH TIP

Watch Your Step

by John P. Powers, DPM, Podiatric Surgery

Every day your feet endure roughly 8-10,000 steps. Many women endure those steps in high heels. This is the primary reason women have, according to the American Podiatric Medical Association (APMA), about four times as many foot problems as men.

High heels may be a major problem for women, but they aren't the only problem. Pregnancy and age are just some of the factors which play a role in foot health.

The APMA determined that high heels — pumps with heels of more than two inches — are biomechanically and orthopedically unsound. High heels may contribute to a variety of foot problems including knee and back problems, injuries resulting from falls, shortened calf muscles, and an unnatural gait.

If you're a slave to fashion you can alleviate some of the high heel damage. Limit the time you wear high heels by alternating with more comfortable, naturally fitting shoes for part of the day.

Nylon stockings can cause foot woes, too. Because nylon doesn't breathe it creates a warm, damp area around your feet, inviting fungal infections (athlete's foot). The abrasiveness of nylon combined with a tight-fitting shoe is a recipe for blisters. Even more detrimental are tighter fitting support hose.

Pregnant women should take special precautions with their feet. Pregnancy changes the entire body, but supportive, shock-absorbing shoes with broad-based heels help swollen feet and ankles to bear the weight of those changes. A podiatrist should be seen if unusual foot discomfort is experienced.

Fat pads on the bottom of the foot deteriorate as you age, so older women experience more foot trouble than younger women do. Cushioned shoes are crucial, as is a soft flexible upper that conforms to the natural shape of the foot. Wearing leather shoes that "breathe" help prevent skin irritations on the feet.

If you experience continued pain an examination by a foot and ankle specialist is in order. Attempts at self-treatment can cost you not only time and money, they might make the problem worse. Preventing foot problems can be as simple as a wardrobe change and a little extra care — a small price to pay to avoid the agony of "de feet."

Look how far we've come in a little more than 100 years

What a difference more than a century makes. The following are several random and unofficial United States statistics from the year 1902.

- ◆ The average life expectancy in the U.S. was 47 years.
- ◆ Only 14 percent of the homes in the U.S. had a bathtub.
- ◆ Only eight percent of all of the homes in the U.S. had a telephone. A three-minute call from Denver to New York City cost $11.
- ◆ There were only 8,000 cars in the U.S. and only 144 miles of paved roads.
- ◆ The maximum speed limit in most cities was 10 miles per hour.
- ◆ Alabama, Mississippi, Iowa and Tennessee were each more heavily populated than California. With only four million residents, California was the 21st most populous state in the Union.
- ◆ The tallest structure in the world was the Eiffel Tower.
- ◆ The average U.S. worker made between $200 and $400 per year.
- ◆ A competent accountant could expect to earn $2,000 per year, a dentist $2,500 per year, a veterinarian between $1,500 and $4,000 per year and a mechanical engineer about $5,000 per year.
- ◆ Ninety percent of all U.S. physicians had no college education. Instead, they attended medical schools, many of which were condemned in the press and by the government as "substandard."
- ◆ Sugar cost four cents a pound. Eggs were 14 cents a dozen. Coffee was 15 cents a pound.
- ◆ Most women only washed their hair once a month and they used borax or egg yolks for shampoo.
- ◆ Canada passed a law prohibiting poor people from entering the country for any reason.
- ◆ The leading causes of death in the U.S. were pneumonia and influenza, tuberculosis, diarrhea, heart disease and stroke.
- ◆ The American flag had 45 stars. Arizona, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Hawaii and Alaska hadn't been admitted to the Union yet.
- ◆ The population of Las Vegas was 60.
- ◆ Crossword puzzles, canned beer and iced tea hadn't been invented.
- ◆ There were no Mother's or Father's Days.
- ◆ One in 10 U.S. adults couldn't read or write. Only six percent of all Americans had graduated from high school.

- ◆ Marijuana, heroin and morphine were all available over the counter at corner drug stores. According to one pharmacist, heroin clears the complexion, gives buoyancy to the mind, regulates the stomach and the bowels, and is, in fact, a perfect guardian of health."
- ◆ Eighteen percent of households in the U.S. had at least one full-time servant or domestic.
- ◆ There were only about 230 reported murders in the entire U.S.
- ◆ The average wage in the U.S. was 22 cents an hour.
- ◆ More than 95 percent of all births in the U.S. took place at home.
